The Decmery, Bryn Mawr,
Pa.

My beloved —

A real misfortune happened to my letter to you today — two of them. First I was in town all yesterday from 8 A.M. till 6 P.M. buying the absolute necessities of existence — thread cotton soap. Kitchen things buttons — secular necessities till I

nearly dropped by the way Today I walked over to the mail to get yr letter you promised to write Thursday evening & got it — the one mailed Friday morning You really must not write at night after a night in a gondola. I will not have
it. Then I looked up my lecture notes at the College till meeting time, walked there. & had to dine

③

with Uncle Allen & Aunt Rebecca (I had promised last week that I forgot it. This got me home only at 3³⁰ & then I had to write 4 abs. nec. business letters & one to Father that was imperative & then I had saved an hr for you & a tea when
in came Mr Kenzie
ab. some business that I not wait & 1/2 of my hr was gone. This evening I

(A)
Must prepare for my lecture
I have an enormous class & they feel impressed on counts.

I knew you had not uttered her of the de Lores Her too it was. How much less excusable than such exhausting work as my last week. Still I have stood it well & have had no headaches. Mrs Walker & Mrs Abbot both are going to be delightful & among other things I have had to furnish their room

The Decency, Bryn Mawr,

Pa.

That I did Saturday

too.

I am glad it is all so charming. The no of people you know sounds very alarming to me but I suppose so many are scarcely worse than a few. I think all the same you would prefer one if that were (as it is not) possible. I must say I feel have cared immensely to be there for a day or two again with you. It was the first nice thing we have ever done together & I wonder how many others it will be the promise of. Coleracks and the Adirondacks were good seconds but it had a charm that was more than natural beauty & art & pictures & their charm is for me far greater. I cannot believe I saw you only last week. I have begun to love you again "in the stars" as as Hauptmann says in such an admirable story in the Collection you mailed Same Volume for us to read together please

Dr Valborg is quite impossible. I set not dream of taking the time. Moreover you

⑧ see from her letter I would not be surprised - she wants a nurse & she thinks her health is not equal to packing. To find another
I will advertise here.
