BRYN MAWR, PA. Feb. 28 1893

I am so sorry my darling for your chill. I would have telegraphed last night but reached home after telegraph office was closed & got home in tears <sup>over</sup>

I was ~~off~~ at the office this morning and received mail as always when I am there. I now have both letters safely in my pocket - I am so grieved you must write two other copies, I am so afraid

② it will tire you - It was a very natural mistake for you to make & I am disheartened beyond measure you were disheartened I really think the emendations much improve it - or I do not get you to revise them.

Also Dr Rhoads is too ill to be troubled about anything & his family might read it. Chalmers & Com (I wish it independent as if you had not careful churches) will be much better

Good bye - please get read of that horrid Tristram headache My dear one
