Dearest Mary,

Again no

moment all day - I was tired after finishing my hurried letter to you last night at ten. Today chapel, letters.

② Several errands that must be done of my household is to go on at all, & back again too late to write to you I fear as it is society meeting to-night at 7<sup>15</sup> P.M. & Dr Rhoads is still housed. I do not know what was said yesterday as Uncle James has not written.

Your letter distressed me very much. I hate you to suffer pain & unnecessary pain - Of course writing to me hurt you such a long letter & such a wast one - Of course if you cannot find a nurse in New York I can send you one.

 Yr letters forwarded today were no trouble to attend to Miss Murphy knew what to do withall, only mail both yr check books so she can make out checks for you to sign - She will stay with you she says - I am going to arrange for her to take type writing & stenography lessons one day in Phila. Miss

(4) Murphy is writing in a book all letters that is done with each one - I promise you it will be right - all right

Do you know Sam -

Sure you ought not to write to me - & you must not - let yr nurse write a few words - dictate them to her - Do not sign or anything Till yr twisted pain goes I must hear daily - I wonder why it hurts more than the other treatment

The Deanery -

Anne is back, my Anne, & it is such a genuine comfort
I have put her under Dr Gerhard's care & he thinks he can bring her round.

About Easter - I will either come to see you or we will wait & spend the first 3 days after yr rest-cure together. I am not at all sure a month will be enough & this time let us err on the safe side. In Book I mailed today

And now note movement More my darling - I wish I could be with you & nurse you - I am sure you like me better with my hat off, do you not? I hope you are much more comfortable worry about nothing -

Good bye my dear
