Friday afternoon

Dearest, dearest Mother,

The lovely pillows came to-day, and the quilt, and the square of embroidery. The only trouble is that now I have too many pillows. I've had to retire the little round yellow one you gave me first. So there'll be no use in your making the other "gooster," I guess. But sometime I shall have to have a stiffer pillow for my blue "gooster"! He's dreadfully mussed now. All the pillows carry out the colour scheme beautifully.

I had the first special exercise to-day, and it was exactly like the gym. I used to have at school. I don't have 2 another lesson till next Friday, thank goodness.

This afternoon I'm going to play hockey, dress for dinner, ^{have dinner} go probably to more senior oral singing, then for a short time to the Philanthropic society party, where you buy your ice cream & candy (that's all I know about it), then Aunt and I are going swimming, at half-past eight. I'm wild to get in, how that I'm authorized.
I expect to have lots of fun.
I imagine that while I'm playing hockey, what swimming I do will be in the evenings. (3) I think I'm on the fourth hockey team.

Isn't that disgusting?

I got a very nice letter from you, the good-mornings, and a ducky little address book. Yes, it's precisely what I want. Also I had an invitation to Erminia Carry's & Faust Pauling's debut, which I have regretted. I feel so grown-up, getting asked to these coming-outs. You know, I expected I would feel more grown-up, here at college, but I don't. I'll have to wait till I come home and go to visit school.

After all the trouble we took ⁽⁴⁾ to change those Maudel's middies for the right size, the one with the blue collar has short sleeves. How?
Late then.

How I'm going to hockey.
Very lovingly
Kathalie

P.S. I don't know about those tea parties, because, in the first place, Sunday is the only day, second, most everyone is in training for hockey, + can eat only 1 cup of tea + 1 cake.
Third, one Sunday will have to go for Papa + Mr. Measry, I suppose. And anyhow, I don't see that it's a bit necessary to do them.
