Rochester, Tuesday Am.

In order to catch the L.S. limited it was necessary to come into town for breakfast, so I am beginning this message while waiting to be served. There is nothing to tell you about save that the three days went most pleasantly and in another hour if the train is on time I shall have joined Nathalie and we shall be on our way further East.

On the train -

I found N. feeling very well after a good night's sleep, and without any trace of the throat cold you said in your letter you succeeded in breaking up. It is a cool gray day and we should have a comfortable journey. Though the train is very crowded. N. says to send all three of you her love with mine. I shall try to mail this at Syracuse so you will get it tomorrow morning.

Sorry A.B. has had to have another operation. I imagine however that it was not very serious.
