The following poem was used as an introduction to the talk:

"Let us grow lovely growing old; So many fine things do; Laces, and ivory, and gold,

And silks, need not be new; And there is healing in old trees; Old streets a glamour hold.

Why may not I, as well as these, Grow lovely, growing old."

Major G. B. Hickman, a member of the Faculty of the Glen Mills School, then spoke on "Crime Prevention". He said his work was fascinating, but not thrilling and that it would be worth while if one boy or girl could be saved. "Crime has its inception in juvenile delinquency," said Major Hickman, "Chil-The meeting is in charge of the dren born of criminal parents are not necessarily criminals and statistics prove that environment is the principa factor in the lives of children."

Many Local Residents Enjoy Interesting and Varied Program and Report of Expenditure of Sum Raised Last Year

Over a hundred and thirty people incational program concerning cancer in the Swarthmore Woman's Club House terested in the infantile paralysis fund sat down to a Benefit dinner at Whittier House last Friday. The sale of tickets was slightly larger than last year, but the exterior donations were fewer. The first thing on the program was the Visiting Nurse report on the expenditure of last year's $42: orthopedic shoes and fresh air vacations were furnished to three crippled children of this locality. Some criticism has been heard because a severe poliomyelitis case near-by, but outside our nursing district, did not benefit. Under the new centralized control of the Fund it is to be hoped that money can now be spent to the very best advan-

MELODRAMA FOR PLAYERS CLUB

'Double Door," Thriller Made Famous by Sybil Thorndike, Directed by Sam Evans For February Bill

Variety is said to be the spice of life and so for February, beginning Tuesday, the 8th, and running through Saturday, the 12th, the Players Club of Swarthmore will present a melodrama and thriller in contrast to the comedies which have

"Double Door," a thrilling and lurid runs in New York and other American cities, and a most successful era in London where Dame Sybil Thorndike used it as a vehicle for her magnificent dramat-A cordial invitation is extended to ic talent. The London press acclaimed her "Victoria Van Bret" as one of her greatest interpretations.

> This American play by an American authoress, is woven about Victoria Van Bret, middle-aged and a spinster, the eldest and head of a dying dynasty of Van Brets in the old brown stone fronts of Fifth Avenue. She rules her domain with an iron will; none must come between her and that which she desires. When someone finally does—but the Club advises you to see the play; it is full of absorbing and gripping interest.

> The fact that Samuel Evans, Jr., is the director and producer gives advance assurance to Swarthmore audiences of an evening's skillful and entertaining dramatization. A glance at the cast, chosen and assigned with the utmost care, reveals additional guarantees of a worth while and enjoyable performance. The names of some of these players are beginning to stir us with a meaning akin to that evoked by favorte performers on the professional stage.

> Jean Milne will be seen in the difficult and exacting role of Victoria Van Bret. Mary Ryan O'Brien is Caroline, Victoria's sister. Margaret Latimer as Anne Darrow has a part which exactly suits her loveliness and J. Stanley Taylor is handsomer than ever in the part of Rip Van Bret. Charles Rickards will play Dr. John Sully, friend of Anne and Rip, and Robert Greer will be seen as Mortimer Neff, the Van Bret family counsel. Martha Keighton is Avery, the Van Bret's housekeeper, and Roland K. Harrison is Telson, their butler. Kate Ivans has the part of Louise, a maid, and Lee Wilson plays William, a footman. Edward H. Pyle, as Lambert, a detective, and John R. Brownell as Mr. Chase, from Tiffany's, complete the cast.

> "Double Door" is a play which, it is promised, will delight any lover of drama. As usual, guest cards may be obtained in 8 Park avenue, Swarthmore, or at the

Card Party Benefit Of Girl Scout House

To raise funds necessary for the maintenance of the Girl Scout House on Cresson lane a card party will be held at 8:15 next Monday evening in the Woman's Club House. Not only does it require considerable money for the upkeep of the Girl Scout House which has added so much to the pleasures and benefits of Scouting in Swarthmore, but it is greatly to be desired at this time to be able to line the house against the weather, making it comfortable for the girls in winter, and to build an outdoor fireplace for cooking purposes. The Girl Scout House Committee is planning next week's card party and hopes to have the support of local residents in maintaining this civic project.

Other Girl Scout News

Troop 16 will hold its regular weekly meeting tomorrow morning at 9:30 in the Girl Scout House.

Troop 2 will meet as usual at the Woman's Club House on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock,

Last Saturday morning at the Girl Scout House Troop 16 entertained Troop 2 as its guests. The meeting began by playing some lively games, so that the girls would get acquainted. Later Irma Zimmer led the girls in Scout songs. Both troops enjoyed the combined meeting very much. The leaders were Mrs. George Zimmer and Mrs. Henry Hanzlik.

i CARAMBA! SAID THE GENERAL

Central American bandits recently had good reason to gnash their strong white molars. The cause was a new use found for old telephone directories. It seems that certain railroad cars, although built of double steel plates, were proving vulnerable to bullets from the high-powered rifles of the caballeros of the plains. But someone discovered that when telephone books were placed between the plates, the death-dealing slugs stopped causing a heavy loss in names but not in lives. i Caramba! said the bandit chief as railroad officials made use of more than two tons of telephone books. Your telephone directory will prob ably never save a life, but it can save time and trouble every day. The Classified Business Section is a real step and time saver when you're looking for something. And once you've found the product or service you want, you can save more steps and more time by using your telephone to transact the business. The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

Dorothy Brower was excellent in the role of Louise, the maid, as was Clarence G. Myers in the part of Lambert, a detective. To Lee Wilson was entrusted the part of William, a footman, and he played it with such grace and feeling as to reflect even greater credit on the almost unerring judgment of the cast-continuously warmed by a succession of laying hens where they lose vitamin content and spoil easily. You'd be horrified if you knew the life history of those "fresh" eggs you've been buying, with pathetic trustfulness, from your huckster-farmer.

CONTRAST THIS METHOD WITH THE NEW SANDY COVE BATTERY METHOD . . . SEE AND TASTE THE DIFFERENCE In a large sanitary air conditioned scientifically constructed building, equipped with the best apparatus that modern research has produced, day-old chicks rapidly grow to maturity in absolutely clean surroundings. Caged, free from disease, fed special mixtures, these chicks develop into tender, full flavored birds, perfect for your table. Fresh laid eggs roll down into wire troughs where they cool properly and keep their full flavor. Her lack of exercise enables the hen to concentrate more food value in her egg which means vitamin packed yolks and meaty albumin. Every egg is of guaranteed weight, unfertile, and wholesome. They are unexcelled for children, convalescents, fastidious folk, and housewives many farms where chickens roam the disease infested ranges, eat insects, and table scraps, and develop under the most unsanitary conditions. Eggs lie in nests continuously warmed by a succession of laying hens where they lose vitamin content and spoil easily. You'd be horrified if you knew the life history of those "fresh" eggs you've been buying, with pathetic trustfulness, from your hucksterfarmer.

Caged, free from disease, fed special mixtures, these chicks develop into tender, full flavored birds, perfect for your table. Fresh laid eggs roll down into wire troughs where they cool properly and keep their full flavor. Her lack of exercise enables the hen to concentrate more food value in her egg which means vitamin packed yolks and meaty albumin. Every egg is of guaranteed weight, unfertile, and wholesome. They are unexcelled for children, convalescents, fastidious folk, and housewives who are shrewd judges of quality.

Something new has come to town in the person of Dorothy Waldo Phillips, with a fresh mind for the adolescents of Swarthmore. She spoke once in the High School Assembly where she aroused such enthusiasm that the high school students voluntarily petitioned for her return to discuss their problems with them. She came to the Home and School meeting to tell the parents first what she wants to do with the young people.

She expressed her hopes that her discussions will "build a bridge over the gulf between the generations" of parents and youth and stated that "A growing intellect and a shrinking personality is our greatest problem today."

The Youth Conference of which sho was Moderator recently at Harrisburg brought out that we need emotional education along with intellectual education. With great humor she told of the Dale Carnegie students in New York, and the pathos of highly educated people who lack the ability to get along with others. It is her hope that such work as hers in the mature adult misses and wishes he might have had to make him a successage young people to know "How to win

TELEPHONE DETECTIVE!

The 11:43 ground to a stop and a young man jumped to the station platform. In less than an hour his rother was to wed and the youth had traveled far to act as best man. He tipped the Red Cap and strode into a telephone booth to spread the glad tidings of his arrival. But alas, he lacked a bit of information—the name of his brother's hotel. Nor did he know where the wedding was to be. Ah, but he did know the bride's name. Swiftly he thumbed through the Directory. He found the number, but could get no answer. The wedding party had already departed for the church.

It was a sorely perplexed young man who confronted the station telephone attendant with his problem. She took it to heart and began to call all hotels throughout the city. No . . . no . . . no . "I'm sorry, no one by that name is registered." Then she got a better idea . . . the marriage license bureau. There a clerk furnished the name of the clergyman and church. A call revealed that brother was still a bachelor—but not for long.

"Hey, taxi!" A detective could not have done better work than that operator. Such young women, alert, intelligent, eager to serve, help give America the finest, fastest, most reliable telephone service in the world. The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania.

What IF WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN HAD BEEN LIVING DURING THE SAME YEARS?

WHAT would have happened if the Nation's two greatest patriots had been living and active in politics at the same time? Would one of them have been left in obscurity and the other heralded as the greatest president ever, or would they have been similar to the Lewis and Green of labor-rule fame?

THIS is hard to determine ... but the Nation knows that both of these men did much to make this a great country . . . they devoted their lives to the people in whom they had faith. It is an honor for us to look up at inspirational figures such as Washington and Lincoln. It is an honor for us to aim at their ideals.

Buchner's (Sw. 240) Mrs. Agnes Haig Sheldon (Sw. 585)

A large, heavy car rushed down upon the treacherous curve. Too late the youthful driver applied the brakes. The car swerved, skidded on the soft gravel shoulder and, rocking crazily, crashed into a roadside tree. Two telephone men, working nearby, were the first to reach the scene. Quickly but carefully they lifted the limp youth from the wreck. While someone telephoned for an ambulance, they worked over the severely injured victim. With swift, sure fingers they applied a tourniquet to a badly gashed leg. Next they straightened and bound a fractured arm.

Later, as the youth was being lifted into the ambulance, the interne approached the telephone men. Speaking with more emotion than doctors usually show, he said, "You've done a splendid job. Your knowledge of first aid probably saved the lad's life.

MATERNAL HEALTH ASSOC. HEARS DR. PARKER IN BOND

"Should Sex Education be Given in the Public Schools?" was the topic which interested a large audience in Bond Memorial, Swarthmore College, where it was presented by Dr. Valeria Parker last Thursday afternoon, February 17, before the Delaware County to occupy an apartment in Philadelphia, Maternal Health Association. For many years she has traveled throughout the United States interesting communities in the need for sex education to be given by schools. homes, and churches. She maintained that youth suffers when any one of these three agencies fail, and claimed, The next meeting of the Poet's Circle "In the early days it was thought that will be held at the home of Mrs. James sex education belonged entirely in the in family relationships courses. Young people are asking for it. One of the best text-books written at the time of the war was: 'High Schools and Sex Education,' by Sidonie Gruenberg. Then it was discovered that high school teaching came too late."

> The whole matter of the contribution of the elementary school was considered. Ten years ago a review of work done in public schools was made. It is said the best method is to put nature study in the first six grades.

It was brought out that there are three wrong ways to present sex education in the home: Postponement; "not nice" attitude; angel or stork attitude. Coming into every school are children badly handled at home. The exceptional parents are the ones who have answered every question honestly. No child is harmed by the true story of birth. By the time he comes to school, a child should find there the nature study of birds, fishes, plants, and animals. Properly given dissection is valuable. High school electives are too late. Recommended were two books for the home: "Plant and Animal Children, How They Grow," by Ellen Torrell, and "Growing Up," by de Schweinitz. The first of these makes a much more interesting "reader" than the usual lower grade reader. It was used in Connecticut schools fifteen years ago. Through nature study a vocabulary is provided. Children are full of interest. Before adolescence the child should receive knowledge of what is about to take place, as he receives it much more easily then than later. Fifteen years old is too late. For this reason, the hygiene of adolescence should be given in the junior high school. Facts presented at the meeting showed that before the World War, Oregon's State Legislature appropriated $60,000 a year for sex education in the schools, from the grammar grades up. Due to a committee of citizens who appeared before the school board in Washington, D. C., sex education has been taught there in the junior high school for several years. The subject should never be taught separately, but must be put into school material in subjects already in the school. The pro-

She maintained that youth suffers when any one of these three agencies fail, and claimed, "In the early days it was thought that people are asking for it. One of the best text-books written at the time of the war was: High Schools and Sex Education,' by Sidonie Gruenberg. Then it was discovered that high school teaching came too late."

> The whole matter of the contribution of the elementary school was considered. Ten years ago a review of work done in public schools was made. It is said the best method is to put nature study in the first six grades.

It was brought out that there are three wrong ways to present sex educa tion in the home: Postponement; "not nice" attitude; angel or stork attitude. Coming into every school are children badly handled at home. The exceptional parents are the ones who have answered every question honestly. No child is harmed by the true story of birth. By the time he comes to school, a child should find there the nature study of birds, fishes, plants, and animals. Properly given dissection is valuable. High school electives are too late. Recommended were two books for the home: "Plant and Animal Children, How They Grow," by Ellen Torrell, and "Growing Up," by de Schweinitz. The first of these makes a much more interesting "reader" than the usual lower grade reader. It was used in Connecticut schools fifteen years ago. Through nature study a vocabulary is provided. Children are full of interest. Before adolescence the child should receive knowledge of what is about to take place, as he receives it much more easily then than later. Fifteen years old is too late. For this reason, the hygiene of adolescence should be given in the junior high school.

Facts presented at the meeting showed that before the World War, Oregon's State Legislature appropriated $60,000 a year for sex education in the schools, from the grammar grades up. Due to a committee of citizens who appeared before the school board in Washington, D. C., sex education has been taught there in the junior high school for several years. The subject should never be taught separately, but must be put into school material in subjects already in the school. The pro-

Here is an interesting fact. Scientific tests show that your efficiency is related to the sugar in your blood, and that milksugar sustains your energy longer. A glassful of milk between meals supplies this energy without upsetting your diet. Housework becomes casier, afternoons enjoyable.
