HORNETS BAG FIRST WIN, TIE

During the week when all games were rained out, it seems that the Hornets spent the time reading Commander Ellsberg's book, On the Bottom, and resolved to do something to rectify matters. Until Memorial Day, their standing was none won, four lost, and their position was -cighth in the Delco League.

Monday, the Hornets staged a knockdown and drag-out slugfest with Leiperville and emerged on top, score Hornets 11, Leiperville 10.

The highest light of the game came in the eighth inning when with the score tied Burke walked and advanced to second on Dotts' sacrifice. He worked a double steal with McWilliams who also presented with a pass, and then stole home Editor of The Garnet, Swarthmore with the winning marker.

Wagner, the starting pitcher, was injured and retired. Cheney relieved him and had the honor of pitching the Hornets into the win column.

Runs were scored by; Shelly (2) Wolf, Henderson (2), Burke (2), Dotts, McWilliams, Wagner and Cheney. Hits were made by Shelly (3), Wolf (2), Henderson (2) one a home run, Dotts, McWilliams (3), Dingle, Wagner and Cheney.

Exceptionally Large Turn Out at Annual Parade and Services This Week

The increased attendance Monday morning when Swarthmore honored her war dead at the annual Memorial Day services was thought by many to be due to the wide spread interest in the recently organized High School Band, which was participating in its first community event.

Surpassing all expectations as to their newly acquired accomplishment, the Band marched west on Park avenue, instruments ablare, to the Borough green, where the members took their stand. Not only parents and friends, but everyone felt high enthusiasm and pride in these youngsters.

The Rev. Thomas A. Meryweather, Chaplain of the Harold Ainsworth Post, gave the prayer at the Memorial Tablet. Scoutmaster A. P. Willis called the roll of those who have passed on. As each name was sounded a Boy Scout came forward and placed a flag at one of the Legion markers before the Tablet.

After the setting of the memorial wreath by ex-Commander Robert T. Bair, a salute by a firing squad of United States Marines, and "Taps", the High School Band struck up "America" and citizens joined in singing.

Commander J. Paul Brown turned the exercises over to the chairman of the Memorial Day committee, Guenther H. Froebel, and Mr. Froebel directed the formation of the parade to Eastlawn Cemetery. Here, at the grave of Charles F. Seymour, the Rev. J. Jarden Guenther made the invocation and led in prayer.

Burgess John H. Pitman delivered declaration, made during the World War by a man with two sons at the front, formed the theme of Mr. Pitman's constructive talk. "All of us are asked to serve now by living orderly intelligent lives. What are we doing to make our community, our state. our nation a better place in which to live? What are we doing to train the coming generation to avoid the mistakes of our generation? Peace has its trials and battles as well as war. 'Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty' is still a verity.

"Patriotism is not a feeling to be aroused only in times of great national emergencies. It is not confined to lines drawn upon a map. Nor is it bounded by the ages."

Commander Brown spoke on the Legion's stand for Peace. Charles F. Seymour, Jr., placed the wreath at the grave on behalf of the Post. There was a repeated volley and "Taps", then Mr. Guenther pronounced the benediction, and the assembled throng started homeward. A large number followed the parade as it retraced the length of Park avenue to Harvard, turned left to Chester road and proceeded along that thoroughfare to the railroad and down Park avenue, disbanding again

VICTOR D. SHIRER Druggist

THE head of a great automobile company I recently referred to money as a form of transportation. He declared that its great purpose is to move goods.

We agree, both in principle and in action. The bank loan enables merchants to move new goods in and move them off the shelves again. It enables farmers to finance livestock and crops during the growing season. It helps the manufacturer move raw materials to his plant, convert them, and move them along to the jobber or retailer. It stimulates wide business activity in the community.

Of course, it is equally necessary for the money itself to keep moving. No railroad would allow its cars to be used for shipments unless it was sure of their return after delivery of the merchandise. The same principle applies to a bank in protecting its depositors' interests.

One of the first activities of the group was a weed show. This took initiative and a certain amount of artistic ability in arrangement. This was followed by a book week program. Books were studied and how they were made. Some children made posters, others wrote poems or stories about books. From this they learned of the scarcity of books in the middle ages. This led to the problem of how people secured information at that time, which resulted in a comprehensive study of life in the middle ages from a social point of view. They studied about illuminations, stained glass, tapestries, minstrels and heraldry. They made illuminations for their Christmas gifts. A trip to the Planetarium showed Snappy Popped WHEAT them the Christmas skies at that time. A later trip to the Art Museum gave them a glimpse into the tapestries, stained glass, furniture and clothes of his period.

The class play was called "A Day in the Castle". The trip to the Museum was very helpful in planning and writing the play and painting their scenery and planning the costumes. They even made their own invitations and pro-

Along with the more exciting activities, the three Rs have not been neglected. Each child is allowed to go his own speed and his progress is judged by his individual advancement. As a group they have worked nicely together. They will have a class picnic this week which will complete their extra activities for the year.
