Topic for 2-week Session

Swarthmore College will be the scene of a summer conference on high school chemistry teaching which will be conducted for two weeks commencing August 19. According to Dr. Walter B. Keighton, Jr., of Cedar lane, professor of chemistry at Swarthmore and a co-director of the conference, the late summer seminar is designed to assist teachers in their continuing efforts to make high school chemistry teaching more effective and, in so doing, encourage more qualified students to consider careers in science-related fields. Course which ended last Friday, take time out for a picture. A REPORT TO

PHILADELPHIA SUBURBAN

WATER COMPANY CUSTOMERS

ABOUT THE PRESENT SUPPLY

OF SPRINGFIELD WATER

As you know, the Suburban Philadelphia Area has been inflicted this Summer with the worst drought in the 85-year history of the Weather Bureau. During the last few months, there has been very little rainfall . . . and practically none at all during recent weeks. In fact, the last effective rainfall occurred in early April. Teaching Conference Opens Mon. at College

High School Chemistry Topic for 2-week Session

Swarthmore College will be the scene of a summer conference on high school chemistry teaching which will be conducted for two weeks commencing August 19. According to Dr. Walter B. Keighton, Jr., of Cedar lane, professor of chemistry at Swarthmore and a co-director of the conference, the late summer seminar is designed to assist teachers in their ontinuing efforts to make high school chemistry teaching more effective and, in so doing, encourage more qualified students to consider careers in science-related fields. Formally entitled the "1957 Summer Conference on the Improvement of High School Chemistry Teaching", the conference is sponsored by the Scott Paper Company Foundation in conjunction with Swarthmore, the Division of Chemical Education of the American Chemical Society, and the Future Scientists of America

Some times a minor variation in room size can result in important carpet economies, or in a better looking installation. Your hearth will look better if it is elevated about the thickness of carpet, to receive carpet flush, rather than being flush with the floor.

Quarter-round (molding) may be omitted in rooms to be car-peted wall-to-wall, and the carpst installed directly to the baseboard.

In radiant heat homes with concrete slab floors, a strip of wood around the edge of the room will permit installation of carpet without costly drilling of concrete.

It costs you nothing to discuss plans with your carpet man. If a helpful suggestion results, you will have it while you can use it.

First Rule of Decorating: Start with your carpet

Carpet should be the first item you select for your home, for the rooms will begin to look furnished when you spread carpet color and texture on the floor. This involves an important decision, for carpet represents a major expenditure as well as a large decorative room area.

Choose a color that you really like, and preferably one that is becoming to you. Of course, it must harmonize with the other furnishings you have, or will buy, but you will refinish your walls and ceiling, and replace your draperies and slipcovers several times before you buy new carpet.

Even if you are not ready for your carpet, it is important to select it so that you can make your other decisions with confidence.

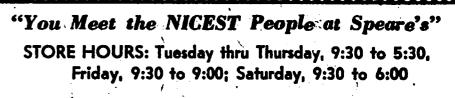

PAULSON offers a FREE decorating booklet and other helps when you visit our store or have someone come to your home with carpet samples.
